

LONG AND CRAWFORD SWITCHGEAR

New Zealand Insulators is proud to be a Business Partner with UK based Long Controls.

Long Controls have developed service kits for the ever reliable Long and Crawford Switchgear range.

Many of these units have been in service for over Fifty years throughout New Zealand.

The cost to replace these units can be prohibitive, but with the in situ service regime developed by Long Controls, the units can be overhauled and twenty years added to their service life.

New Zealand Insulators is holding stock of the service kits in our Temuka and Auckland warehouses, and also co-ordinating training for network technicians in how to carry out the servicing.

The extent of the servicing and part replacement carried out, can be varied depending on the age and location of the units. Kits can include all internal parts, Bushings, gaskets, and even replacement site glasses.

Our industry has seen a varied selection of RMUs and Fused Switch Units over the years, with varying degrees of reliability and longevity. None can match the service life and ongoing reliability of the Long and Crawford units.

A service regime that adds at least Twenty years to operational life, is an economical opportunity that needs to be considered. If you wish to find out more about our service kits or training, please contact Steve Robertson or David Glackin on the numbers below.
